Strategic Engagement
for Gender Equality
2016-2019

Dear Reader,

As European Commissioner for Justice, Consumers and Gender Equality, I am very pleased to introduce to you our Strategic engagement for gender equality 2016-2019.

While Europe has made step-by-step progress over recent years, thanks to hard work at local, national and European level, gender equality still remains unfinished business. We are far from reaching equality, in particular in areas such as participation in the labour market, economic independence, pay and pensions, equality in leadership positions, fighting gender-based violence, and gender equality in our external action.

To guide the way forward for the European Union we gathered views from across Europe on gender equality – via a Eurobarometer survey, a Forum on the future of gender equality and an online public consultation. And we evaluated the strengths and weaknesses of the Strategy for equality between women and men (2010-2015).

This Strategic engagement to gender equality 2016-2019 marks a new phase in our efforts to promote equality between women and men while continuing to focus on priority areas for action of particular relevance. It identifies more than thirty key actions to be implemented in five priority areas, with timelines and indicators for monitoring. In addition, it emphasises the need to integrate a gender equality perspective into all EU policies as well as into EU funding programmes. This will be my strategy to ensure that gender equality is promoted across the EU through concrete actions and effective steps.

I look forward to working with you in the coming years to ensure that equality between women and men becomes ever more of a reality.

Věra Jourová

Commissioner for Justice, Consumers and Gender Equality

1. INTRODUCTION

Promoting gender equality is a core activity for the EU: equality between women and men is a fundamental EU value¹, an EU objective² and a driver for economic growth³. The Union shall aim to promote equality between men and women in all its activities⁴.

The Commission's 2010-2015 strategy for equality between women and men⁵ prioritised five key areas for action:

- ▶ equal economic independence for women and men;
- ▶ equal pay for work of equal value;
- ▶ equality in decision-making;
- ▶ dignity, integrity and ending gender-based violence; and
- ▶ promoting gender equality beyond the EU.

Progress has been achieved in recent years⁶, as witnessed, for example, by the highest employment rate ever recorded for women (64 % in 2014) and their increasing participation in economic decision-making. However, this upward trend is offset by persistent inequality in other areas, e.g. in terms of pay and earnings.

All five key areas identified in 2010 remain valid today. Action over the past five years to address gender inequalities needs more time to secure the necessary changes and support in the form of new measures in these areas. At the same time, recent socio-economic changes resulting from the economic crisis, the rapid spread of digital technology and immigration and integration impact on gender equality.

Therefore, as set out in its 2016 work programme⁷, the Commission will continue its practical work to promote gender equality. Action will continue with a focus on all the five priority areas. Efforts are required of all actors if we are to achieve real equality between women and men in all spheres of life within the EU and elsewhere. This “Strategic engagement for gender equality 2016-2019” is a reference framework for increased effort at all levels, be they European, national, regional or local. It continues to corroborate the 2011-2020 European Pact for gender equality⁸.

Member States, the European Parliament and a wide range of stakeholders have all contributed, including through a public consultation which attracted almost 5 000 replies. An overwhelming majority (94 %) of the organisations that replied consider the priorities laid out in the current strategy still to be valid for future engagement.

This view is confirmed by Member States, who also recognise the importance of European-level action in providing a reference framework⁹. More and more Member States are addressing gender equality challenges through national strategies or action plans for equality between women and men (see Annex 5). These vary in focus and ambition, but all (see Annex 6) cover policies on gender-based violence and gender equality in the labour market. Education and training, gender stereotypes and the reconciliation of work and family life are also covered extensively; decision-making is the area addressed least.

9 Opinion of the Advisory Committee on equal opportunities for women and men on Gender equality in the 21st century: remaining challenges and priorities.

The “Strategic engagement for gender equality 2016-2019” is based on continuous¹⁰ and ad hoc evaluation¹¹ of the 2010-2015 strategy, which has concluded inter alia that it has added value in a number of areas, especially in relation to agenda-setting and learning, by providing a valuable framework for gender mainstreaming in the Commission and for the implementation of a coherent framework for gender-equality policies in the Member States.

Europeans feel strongly about promoting gender equality: three quarters of respondents of a recent Eurobarometer survey (76 %)¹² think that tackling inequality between men and women should be an EU priority. Around nine in ten (91 %) agree that tackling inequality between men and women is necessary to creating a fairer society.

2. GENDER EQUALITY IN 2015: CHALLENGES AND GAPS

During the crisis, unemployment reached unbearable levels for both men and women in too many countries. However, across the EU, more and more women are economically active. Women’s employment reached the highest level ever recorded (64 %)¹³ in 2014, while men’s employment (75 %)¹⁴ has yet to regain its pre-crisis level. As a result, more and more families depend financially on women’s work. Women have made inroads into decision-making positions in many spheres of life and, although they still represent only 21 %¹⁵ of board members of the biggest listed companies, this constitutes a significant (nine percentage points) improvement over the last five years. The most substantial improvement has been seen in countries that introduced legislative measures. The gender balance in politics has also improved, but at a slower pace: the proportion of women in national parliaments and governments has risen steadily from 22 % and 21 % respectively at the end of 2004 to 29 % and 27 % in 2015¹⁶. Gender inequalities in decision-making bodies in research organisations have also been reduced: the proportion of female heads of institutions increased in 15 of the 20 EU countries for which 2010 and 2014 data were available¹⁷.

Attitudes towards equality are evolving, but today’s younger generation is not immune to gender stereotypes and disparities. Gender inequalities in education persist – in terms of study subject preferences, performance and patterns of participation. Boys, especially from disadvantaged backgrounds, drop out of school more than girls and encounter many more difficulties in reading¹⁸. Women are more likely to have a higher education degree but remain overrepresented in fields of study that are linked to traditional female roles such as care-related fields and are under-represented in science, mathematics, IT, engineering and related careers. As a result, inequality in occupations is taking new forms rather than diminishing and, despite their investment in education, young women are still twice as likely as young men to be economically inactive. Women also represent the biggest untapped source of entrepreneurial potential, representing only 29 % of entrepreneurs.

In terms of access to financial resources over a lifetime, gender equality remains elusive. Women (particularly migrant women and women heading single-parent households) still generate a much lower proportion of income on the labour market than men. Women in employment, especially mothers, are much more likely to work part-time and are paid on average 16 %¹⁹ less than men per hour of work. As a consequence, the gender overall earnings gap during active years has reached 41 %²⁰ and leads to a very wide gender gap in pensions, which today stands at 40 %²¹. Older women are much more at risk of poverty and social exclusion than older men and no mitigating trends have been observed in recent years. Without new action, women are likely to continue to be economically disadvantaged by motherhood during their career and in retirement, in particular as a result of an unequal sharing of care and housework responsibilities (working women still devote two and a half hours a day more to parenting and household duties than men)²².

Gender-based violence is still widespread and can take many forms: one woman in three has experienced physical or sexual violence, 5 % have been raped since the age of 15 and 20 % have experienced online harassment²³. Such violence happens everywhere – at home, at work, at school, in the street or online – regardless of social background. Gender-based violence and negative stereotypes in sport, for instance, are widespread²⁴. It harms victims not only in terms of their health and well-being, but also their working lives, thereby damaging their financial independence and the economy in general. It is estimated that 500 000 women and girls in the EU are at risk of female genital mutilation (FGM)²⁵. In addition, women and girls make up the majority of human trafficking victims (68 % women, 17 % men, 12 % girls and 3 % boys)²⁶.

Worldwide, women's fundamental rights continue to be violated and they face discrimination in access to education, work, social protection, inheritance, economic assets, productive resources and participation in decision-making and society at large. Women spend two to ten times more time on unpaid work than men, which is one of the main obstacles to economic and political empowerment²⁷. About 140 million girls and women are currently living with the consequences of FGM. One girl in nine is married before the age of 15, with many forced into marriage and becoming mothers before the age of 16²⁸. This has serious consequences: complications during pregnancy and childbirth are the second biggest cause of death among adolescent girls²⁹. Since the establishment of the Millennium Development Goals³⁰, progress on maternal health has been disappointingly slow and women and girls are disproportionately affected by HIV. This is also linked to a failure to ensure universal access to sexual and reproductive healthcare services for women and girls.

3. PRIORITIES AND KEY ACTIONS FOR 2016-2019

In its work programme, the Commission has reaffirmed its commitment to continue its work to promote equality between men and women. This means maintaining the focus of gender-equality policy on the five existing thematic priority areas:

- ▶ increasing female labour-market participation and the equal economic independence of women and men;
- ▶ reducing the gender pay, earnings and pension gaps and thus fighting poverty among women;
- ▶ promoting equality between women and men in decision-making;
- ▶ combating gender-based violence and protecting and supporting victims; and
- ▶ promoting gender equality and women's rights across the world.

Below we set out key actions, chosen for maximum impact and deliverability during this Commission's mandate, together with indications as to timing. Progress will be measured, in particular, against the indicators in Annex 1 and the targets in Annex 2. Across all priority areas, attention will be paid to the role of men, dismantling gender stereotypes and promoting non-discriminatory gender roles. Particular attention will be paid to the specific needs of groups facing multiple disadvantages, e.g. single parents and older, migrant, Roma and disabled women.

A mix of the following legislative, non-legislative and funding instruments will be used to achieve the objectives under each priority, including:

- integration of a gender-equality perspective into all EU activities (see section 4);
- enforcement of equal treatment legislation;
- EU funding programmes for 2014-2020 (see section 5);
- ongoing improved data collection with the support of Eurostat, the European Institute for Gender Equality (EIGE), Eurofound, the Council of Europe (CoE) and the Fundamental Rights Agency (FRA);
- exchanges of good practice and peer-learning between Member States and cooperation with all actors (see section 6); and
- An annual review of key actions carried out, in connection with the preparation of annual progress reports on equality between women and men, to assess the need for additional action.

3.1. Increasing female labour-market participation and the equal economic independence of women and men

Objectives:

If we are to achieve the EU's target of 75 % of men and women in employment in 2020 and, in particular, close the gender gap in employment, coordinated efforts will be required to facilitate women's labour-market participation. As underlined in the 2016 work programme, this will involve making it easier to balance caring and professional responsibilities. It also requires a more equal sharing of time spent on care and household responsibilities. The Barcelona targets³¹ on childcare must be attained and reflection undertaken with Member States on ways of making them more ambitious and extending them to cover care of other dependants should be considered. Female entrepreneurship, gender equality in research and the labour-market integration of migrant women are further components of equal economic independence.

KEY ACTIONS TO REACH THESE OBJECTIVES

Continued action on increasing women's participation in the labour market and combining work and family life, complemented by a new and comprehensive initiative to address the work-life balance challenges faced by working parents and carers³² (2016-2019):

- modernising the current EU legal framework: ensure better enforcement and where appropriate adapt legislation in the areas of leave and flexible working arrangements, in consultation with the social partners³³, to provide better work-life balance for parents and people with caring responsibilities (2016-2019);
- setting out a broad policy framework supporting parents' participation in the labour market and a more equal use of leave and flexible work arrangements, including considering possible benchmarking, targeted use of EU financial tools to support Member States and awareness-raising (2016);
- continued monitoring and support for Member States in attaining the Barcelona targets on childcare (annually); taking into account the results of a public consultation on work-life balance³⁴, considering consulting Member States and stakeholders on how to make the Barcelona targets more ambitious and consider a more comprehensive approach, e.g. covering care of other dependants, accessibility and quality (2016);
- supporting Member States in their efforts to increase female labour-market participation, close monitoring of national reform measures under the European Semester in line with the employment guidelines³⁵ and issuing country-specific recommendations where necessary (annually); and
- further supporting companies in their efforts to increase female labour-market participation by facilitating Diversity Charter platforms³⁶ (ongoing).

In addition, efforts will continue to be stepped up, with a focus on:

- evaluation of the Social Security Directive³⁷ and follow-up of the outcomes; drafting of a report on implementation of the Self-Employed Directive³⁸ and possible follow-up action (2016);
- integrating a gender perspective into the implementation of the European Migration Agenda³⁹, addressing barriers to the employment and career progression of migrant women; helping Member States to make full use of the possibilities offered by the European Social Fund (ESF) in this area (2016-2019);
- awareness-raising to promote female entrepreneurship, including through the launch of an e-platform for women entrepreneurs (2016), the creation of a European Network of Women Business Angels (2016) and the Network of Women's Web Entrepreneurs Hubs (2016-2017); and
- promoting institutional change in research organisations to remove barriers to gender equality and engage all research organisations to implement gender equality plans (2016-2017).

3.2. Reducing gender pay, earnings and pension gaps and thus fighting poverty among women

Objectives:

The aim of reducing the persisting gender pay, earnings and pension gaps, and thereby inequality in access to financial resources throughout life is reconfirmed. This calls in particular for a substantial reduction of inequality in economic sectors and occupations, an increase in women's overall paid working hours, awareness-raising and effective implementation of equal pay legislation. It also calls for policies and measures for those facing particular barriers to entry to the labour market, such as migrant women and single parents. In addition, the causes and consequences of the gender pension gap need to be addressed, as this is an obstacle to the economic independence of women in old age, when they face a higher risk of poverty than men.

KEY ACTIONS TO REACH THESE OBJECTIVES

- further improving the implementation and enforcement of the equal pay principle by carrying out an assessment of Directive 2006/54/EC⁴⁰ (2016-2017) and considering inter alia:
 - i. strengthening pay transparency on the basis of the report to be drawn up on Member States' measures to implement the Commission Recommendation;⁴¹
 - ii. the effects of recent case-law of the European Court of Justice regarding use of sex as an actuarial factor influencing statutory pensions and private insurance contracts on the sector of occupational pensions with the possible effect of preventing lower pensions for women on the basis of their higher average life expectancy;
 - iii. sanctions to improve the deterrent effect of the prohibition of pay discrimination; and
 - iv. the efficient and effective functioning of equality bodies to facilitate access to justice for victims of discrimination;
- continuing support for Member States' efforts to ensure equal pay and address the root causes of the gender pay, earnings and pension gaps; use the European Semester (annually);
- cooperating with equality bodies and supporting companies in efforts to ensure equal pay by facilitating Diversity Charter platforms (ongoing);
- continuing to mark European Equal Pay Day with Europe-wide information activities to reach out to Member States; raising awareness of the link between pay, earnings and pension entitlements in old age (annually);
- consider introducing further measures to improve the gender balance in economic sectors and occupations; using the Grand Coalition for Digital Jobs⁴² to support measures enhancing digital skills among women and girls and promoting female employment in the ICT sector (2016-2017); activities to raise awareness of educational and vocational training choices (2018-2019);
- promoting gender equality in all levels and types of education, including in relation to gendered study subject choices and careers, using existing policy cooperation tools and funding instruments as appropriate, in line with the priorities set out in the "Education and Training 2020" framework (2016-2019);

41 Commission Recommendation C(2014) 1405 final on strengthening the principle of equal pay between men and women through transparency.

42 <https://ec.europa.eu/digital-agenda/en/grand-coalition-digital-jobs-0>

- continuing development of a comprehensive set of measures⁴³ to tackle the full range of causes of the gender gap in pensions in cooperation with the Member States, including the indicator for measuring and monitoring it and measures to mitigate gender factors, e.g. as regards caring (2016-2017).

⁴³ Building on the EPSCO Council conclusions of June 2015 on Equal income opportunities for women and men: closing the gender gap in pensions.

3.3. Promoting equality in decision-making

Objectives:

The goal of a better gender balance in economic leadership positions, in particular at least 40 % representation of the under-represented sex among non-executive directors of companies listed on stock exchanges, is reconfirmed. Promoting equality in decision-making also requires a better gender balance among executive directors of major listed companies and in the talent pipeline. These efforts should be complemented with data collection, action to tackle the over-representation of men in decision-making positions in research organisations and measures promoting gender balance in political decision-making and public life, including sports. European administrations will lead by example. The Commission has set itself a target of 40 % women in senior and middle management by the end of 2019 (see Annex 3).

KEY ACTIONS TO REACH THESE OBJECTIVES

- continue to support adoption of the 2012 proposal for a Directive on improving the gender balance among non-executive directors of companies listed on stock exchanges by 2016⁴⁴, closely monitor transposition and implementation, and support other targeted initiatives to improve the gender balance in decision-making, including guidance for Member States (ongoing);
- continue to collect and disseminate data on the representation of women and men in high decision-making positions, in close cooperation with the European Institute for Gender Equality (ongoing);
- consider measures to improve the gender balance in political decision-making and continue to encourage Member States and support national authorities' activities promoting gender balance in political and public decision-making positions (2018);
- provide guidance for Member States on a common approach to the implementation of quantitative targets for decision-making positions in research (2016);
- reach the target of 40 % women in the Commission's senior and middle management by the end of its mandate (ongoing).

⁴⁴ Commission 2016 work programme, Annex III, item 3.

3.4. Combating gender-based violence and protecting and supporting victims

Objectives:

Combating gender-based violence and protecting and supporting victims will be a continued priority. Its eradication requires greater efforts from all actors, including the Member States, to improve data availability, quality and reliability, raise awareness, change attitudes, prevent such violence, ensure better victim support and access to justice, and fully transpose and implement relevant EU legislation.

KEY ACTIONS TO REACH THESE OBJECTIVES

- EU accession to the Council of Europe convention on preventing and combating violence against women and domestic violence (Istanbul Convention), to the extent of EU competences and taking into account the legal impact of an accession; implement subsequently its provisions and continue to encourage Member States' progress on ratification (2016)⁴⁵;
- continue to enforce the Victim's Rights Directive and laws on European protection orders, in particular to ensure access to protection and support for those exposed to gender-based violence (ongoing);
- further improve the availability, quality and reliability of data on gender-based violence through cooperation with Eurostat⁴⁶, the European Institute for Gender Equality and the Fundamental Rights Agency (ongoing); continue to gather comparable data on gender-based violence in sport through a specific study (2016);
- continue focused actions to end all forms of gender-based violence and raise awareness (2017);
- continue to promote changes in attitudes and behaviour through awareness-raising activities, including appropriate activities to mark the International Day of Zero Tolerance for Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) (6 February) and the International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women (25 November) (annually);
- continue implementation of measures set out in the Communication *Towards the elimination of female genital mutilation*⁴⁷ and use appropriate instruments to eradicate FGM and build on this experience to tackle other harmful practices; develop a web-based knowledge platform on FGM for relevant professionals (2016-2017); and
- take necessary steps to follow up the report assessing Member States' compliance with the Anti-trafficking Directive (2016) and ensure that the gender dimension of human trafficking is addressed (ongoing).

45 http://ec.europa.eu/smart-regulation/roadmaps/docs/2015_just_010_istanbul_convention_en.pdf

46 This could require legislation (a statistical regulation), at some point, depending on the outcome of the development work.

47 COM(2013) 833 final.

3.5. Promoting gender equality and women's rights across the world

Objectives:

The protection and promotion of women's and girls' rights and gender equality is a policy priority for the EU's external relations, and the EU is strongly committed to playing a lead role in this respect. These are essential pre-conditions for equitable and inclusive sustainable development, and important values and objectives in themselves. They are also a pre-condition for peace and security worldwide and help to counter radicalisation and extremism, which denigrate women and violate their rights and dignity. The EU remains fully committed to the promotion, protection and fulfilment of all human rights and to the full and effective implementation of obligations and commitments to women's rights in all international fora, in particular the Convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women⁴⁸ under the UN Beijing Platform for Action⁴⁹ and the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development.

Women's and girls' rights, gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls are at the core of the UN's 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, both as a stand-alone objective⁵⁰ and as a cross-cutting issue integrated into the targets and indicators of all the sustainable development goals⁵¹. These should also be essential considerations in the use of financial and non-financial means of implementing, and in the review, monitoring and accountability mechanisms of, the 2030 Agenda. Given that the Agenda applies universally to all countries, including EU Member States, it is essential to ensure coherence between EU internal and external policies at all levels. Gender equality and the adoption of the EU gender equality acquis must also continue to be assessed in the accession process.

KEY ACTIONS TO REACH THESE OBJECTIVES

In cooperation with the EEAS and Member States, implement the action plan set out in the joint staff working document on Gender equality and women's empowerment: transforming the lives of girls and women through EU external relations, 2016-2020⁵² and, in line with this new framework for the EU's activities on gender equality in external relations, undertake:

- with the EEAS and in cooperation with Member States, to champion the promotion of gender equality and women's rights in the implementation and monitoring of the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and implementation of the Beijing Platform for Action (ongoing);
- with the EEAS and Member States, to promote gender equality and promote and protect girls' and women's rights through the EU action plan on human rights and democracy, the comprehensive approach to the EU's implementation of UN Security Council (UNSC) Resolutions 1325 and 1820 on women, peace and security and the 2008 EU guidelines on violence against women and girls (ongoing);

- to continue to fund and monitor action promoting gender equality in development and neighbourhood cooperation and humanitarian aid, including through the systematic use of the OECD gender markers⁵³ in development cooperation and the gender-age marker⁵⁴ in all EU-funded humanitarian action, to assess whether the needs and vulnerabilities of males and females of all ages have been identified and addressed (ongoing); and
- to continue to closely monitor and support candidate and potential candidate countries' compliance with the Copenhagen criteria for membership of the EU as regards human rights including equality between women and men; continue efforts to integrate a gender mainstreaming perspective into all relevant programmes funded through the Instrument for Pre-accession Assistance (IPA) and the European Neighbourhood Instrument (ENI) (ongoing).

53 <http://www.oecd.org/investment/stats/37461060.pdf>.

54 http://ec.europa.eu/echo/files/policies/sectoral/gender_age_marker_toolkit.pdf.

4. INTEGRATING A GENDER EQUALITY PERSPECTIVE INTO ALL EU ACTIVITIES AND POLICIES

In addition to the key actions set out above⁵⁵, gender equality will continue to be promoted through the integration of a gender equality perspective into every aspect of EU intervention (preparation, design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of policies, legal measures and spending programmes), i.e. gender mainstreaming⁵⁶. This means assessing the impact of EU action on both women and men and taking responsibility for any readjustment necessary, so that women and men benefit equally and inequality is not perpetuated.

Gender mainstreaming will be continued by incorporating gender equality considerations⁵⁷ in impact assessments and evaluations in line with the Better Regulation principles.

In addition, the Inter-Service Group on equality between women and men (in which all Commission departments are represented and which meets at least twice a year) will continue to monitor and steer the integration of a gender equality perspective in policy, legal and spending programme activities, including budgetary matters, across all EU policy areas and will consider issuing a report on gender mainstreaming in the Commission in 2017. The report will complete the key actions set out above by presenting sectorial aspects, such as gender equality in transport, energy, education, health, taxation, agriculture, trade, regional policy, maritime affairs and the environment.

⁵⁵ Some of which include gender mainstreaming measures in particular policy areas (e.g. employment, migration, external relations).

⁵⁶ Article 8 TFEU: 'In all its activities, the Union shall aim to eliminate inequalities, and to promote equality between men and women'.

⁵⁷ See in particular tool 16 of the Better Regulation Toolbox: http://ec.europa.eu/smart-regulation/guidelines/docs/br_toolbox_en.pdf.

5. EU FUNDING IN SUPPORT OF GENDER EQUALITY

If key actions and gender mainstreaming are necessary, so is the allocation of relevant EU-level funding. Gender budgeting⁵⁸ is not applied systematically to the EU general budget⁵⁹, but its 2014-2020 funding programmes provide means of promoting gender equality and gender mainstreaming in a number of key policy areas; for example:

- the European Structural and Investment Funds (ESIFs), in particular the European Social Fund and the European Regional Development Fund, are key financial levers for promoting equality, e.g. in access to employment, career progression, reconciliation of work and private life, equal pay for equal work, the labour-market integration of migrant women and investment in the provision of childcare infrastructure;
- the Rights, Equality and Citizenship Programme will co-finance national projects promoting equal economic independence, overcoming rigid gender roles and stereotypes, and raising awareness of the gender pension gap and its causes and consequences. It will also invest in preventing and combating violence against women by financing projects supporting victims of violence, training relevant professionals, raising awareness and preventing violence linked to harmful practices;
- through support for the Safer Internet Digital Services Infrastructure financed by the Connecting Europe Facility, helplines in Member States for young victims of cyberbullying (who are twice as likely to be girls than boys) will be financed;
- funding will be allocated to gender equality and women's and girls' empowerment in the next seven years through the EU Global Public Goods and Challenges thematic programme under the Development Cooperation Instrument supporting EU external cooperation; and
- gender equality concerns are mainstreamed in Erasmus+, the EU funding programme for education, training, youth and sport (2014-2020)

Mechanisms provided by the regulations and the relevant programme committees to verify the effectiveness and efficiency of gender equality funding will be used, inter alia assessing Member States' implementation reports where appropriate.

Annex 4 provides an overview of EU-level funding of EUR 6.17 billion allocated to achieving the targets and objectives of this strategic engagement.

In line with its Treaty obligations, the gender-equality perspective will be taken into account in preparing the post-2020 generation of EU funding programmes.

⁵⁸ i.e. a gender-based assessment of budgets, incorporating a gender perspective at all levels of the budgetary process and restructuring revenues and expenditures in order to promote gender equality.

⁵⁹ Note that there is also no specific budgeting for other policies that can be mainstreamed, such as climate and biodiversity.

6. COOPERATION WITH ALL ACTORS

Close cooperation with institutions and stakeholders active in the field of gender equality (Member States, the European Parliament, the European External Action Service, social partners, civil society organisations, equality bodies, international organisations and EU agencies) will be continued. This will take many forms, from bilateral and multilateral exchanges to structured dialogues.

National strategy documents and developments in the area of gender equality in the Member States will be followed and exchanges of good practice among Member States will be facilitated through the mutual learning programme. Cooperation with Member States will also continue through the High-Level Group on gender mainstreaming.

The Advisory Committee on equal opportunities for women and men composed of representatives from Member States, social partner organisations and civil society will continue to advise the Commission on policy and legislative initiatives. The European Institute for Gender Equality will continue to play an important role in developing and sharing reliable evidence and data to support evidence-based policy-making, e.g. through its gender equality index⁶⁰.

The European Parliament and the Council are invited to actively engage in this cooperation.

7. MONITORING AND EVALUATION

Implementation of the above actions will continue to be monitored regularly. Progress, including examples of practice in the Member States, will be reported on annually on the basis inter alia of the targets and indicators in Annexes 1 and 2.

Subject to the conclusions of the 2017 annual report, a top-level dialogue could take place in 2018 involving the European Parliament, the Council presidencies and key stakeholders, such as the European social partners and civil society, to take stock mid-term, identify challenges and discuss ways forward.

Annex 1: Objectives, Actions, Responsibilities and Indicators

1. Increase female labour-market participation and equality in the economic independence of women and men

Objectives

- reach the EU target of 75 % of men and women in employment in 2020 and close the employment gap for women;
- more equal sharing between women and men of time spent on care and household responsibilities and improved possibilities for balancing caring and professional responsibilities;
- attainment of the Barcelona targets on childcare and consider serious reflection with Member States on possible ways of making them more ambitious and extending them to cover care of other dependants;
- promotion of female entrepreneurship and gender equality in research;
- better labour-market integration of migrant women.

1. EU-level targets

The Strategic engagement for gender equality 2016-2019 will contribute to reaching the following existing targets:

TARGETS:	SOURCE:
0 % gender employment gap (20-64 years)	EU2020 strategy: 75 % employment target for both women and men
Provision of childcare for 33 % of children under 3 and 90 % of children between 3 and mandatory school age	Objectives set at the 2002 Barcelona European Council and reconfirmed by the 2011-2020 European Pact for gender equality ⁷⁵

⁷⁵ https://www.consilium.europa.eu/uedocs/cms_data/docs/pressdata/en/lsa/119628.pdf.

2. Internationally agreed targets

On 25-27 September 2015, the UN member states adopted an ambitious new post-2015 agenda⁷⁶ which seeks to end poverty by 2030 and promote shared economic prosperity, social development and environmental protection for all countries. It is based on 17 goals, including a stand-alone goal on gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls, with specific targets and indicators, and gender-sensitive targets in other areas.

As the agenda was negotiated by all UN members, including the EU and its Member States, and applies to all for the next 15 years, this strategic engagement will contribute to achieving its gender-sensitive targets, in particular the following targets under goal 5:

- 5.1 End all forms of discrimination against all women and girls everywhere;
- 5.2 Eliminate all forms of violence against all women and girls in the public and private spheres, including trafficking and sexual and other types of exploitation;
- 5.3 Eliminate all harmful practices, such as child, early and forced marriage and female genital mutilation
- 5.4 Recognise and value unpaid care and domestic work through the provision of public services, infrastructure and social protection policies and the promotion of shared responsibility within the household and the family as nationally appropriate;
- 5.5 Ensure women's full and effective participation and equal opportunities for leadership at all levels of decision-making in political, economic and public life;
- 5.6 Ensure universal access to sexual and reproductive health and reproductive rights as agreed in accordance with the Programme of Action of the International Conference on Population and Development and the Beijing Platform for Action and the outcome documents of their review conferences;
- 5.a Undertake reforms to give women equal rights to economic resources, as well as access to ownership and control over land and other forms of property, financial services, inheritance and natural resources, in accordance with national laws;
- 5.b Enhance the use of enabling technology, in particular information and communications technology, to promote the empowerment of women;
- 5.c Adopt and strengthen sound policies and enforceable legislation for the promotion of gender equality and the empowerment of all women and girls at all levels.

Annex 3:

Integrating a gender equality perspective into all human resource practices and policies in the European Commission

The concept of diversity recognises the wide variety of qualities among staff in terms of skills, competences, attributes, personality and knowledge also in the Commission. Therefore, diversity management will be strategic for the institution and enjoy strong political support. In this context, a particular focus will be on senior management's responsibility to secure results at this level.

Three priority areas will be considered:

- an inclusive and results-oriented working environment benefiting all staff;
- achieving 40 % female representation in middle and senior management by the end of the mandate; and
- achieving excellence in attracting and retaining staff with a disability.

The Commission working environment needs to be results-oriented, so that staff is free to organise their work autonomously and manage the relationship between work and other activities (work-life balance). There could be several communication initiatives and a learning and development framework to trigger and sustain the shift to a genuinely inclusive workplace.

Annex 4:

2014-2020 EU funding programmes contributing to reaching the targets and objectives of this strategic engagement

A number of EU funding programmes in 2014-2020 allow for the promotion of gender equality and gender mainstreaming; these include:

- the European Structural and Investment Funds;
- the Asylum, Migration and Integration Funds;
- the Rights, Equality and Citizenship Programme;
- the Horizon 2020 Framework Programme for Research and Innovation;
- Erasmus + (EU programme for education, training, youth and sport);
- the Connecting Europe Facility (EU programme to co-fund trans-European network projects);
- the Development Cooperation Instrument;
- the European Neighbourhood Instrument;
- the European Instrument for Democracy and Human Rights; and
- the Programme for Employment and Social Innovation.

Indicative funding for gender equality can be provided for programmes that include a gender equality objective and use gender equality indicators allowing for the specification of allocated amounts.

European Structural and Investment Funds (ESIFs)

The 2014-2020 ESIFs, in particular the European Social Fund (ESF) and the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF), are key financial levers for the promotion of equality between women and men. On the basis of the operational programmes agreed between Member States and the Commission, it is estimated that approximately EUR 5.85 billion will be spent in 2014-2020 on measures promoting gender equality.

Approximately EUR 4.6 billion in ESF spending in 2014-2020 is programmed for gender equality, of which EUR 1.6 billion under the 'equality between men and women in all areas, including in access to employment, career progression, reconciliation of work and private life and promotion of equal pay for equal work' investment priority chosen by 12 Member States⁷⁷.

77 AT, CZ, DE, ES, FI, GR, HU, IT, PL, PT, SK and UK.

Approximately EUR 1.25 billion from the European Regional and Development Fund is programmed for investment in childcare infrastructure.

Rights, Equality and Citizenship Programme

Around EUR 440 million is allocated to the Rights, Equality and Citizenship (REC) Programme, which has nine specific objectives, including one for gender equality and another for preventing and combating violence against women, children and young people, and protecting victims and groups at risk. These two objectives currently account for around 35 % of the REC funds.

Development Cooperation Instrument

Among many other targeted actions, EUR 100 million will be committed to improving the lives of girls and women through the 2014-2020 Global Public Goods and Challenges specific thematic programme. Of this, EUR 70 million is earmarked for the 'gender, women empowerment and girls rights' budget line and EUR 30 million for the 'child well-being' line, which will include EUR 18 million to tackle harmful practices such as FGM and child marriage.

In addition, gender equality will be mainstreamed in bilateral and regional geographical programmes. Examples include the DCI-Asia Latin America programme which will dedicate EUR 16 to 18 million to specific actions on gender equality or the EUR 2 million Gender Equality Facility in Albania.

Horizon 2020

Gender equality is promoted in three ways under Horizon 2020:

- gender balance in advisory groups (50 % target) and evaluation panels (40 %) — data will be published in Horizon 2020 monitoring reports;
- grant beneficiaries are encouraged to aim at gender balance and equal opportunities in research teams engaged in projects; and
- gender dimension in research content (i.e. taking account of women's and men's biological characteristics and social/cultural factors).

In addition, within the 'science with and for society' work programme 2014-2017, a budget of about EUR 43 million will be allocated to projects promoting awareness and implementation of gender equality in the research system and research organisations.

Annex 5:

National gender-equality strategies/action plans (September 2015)

The adoption by an increasing number of Member States of national strategies or action plans (NAPs) addressing gender equality in a coherent and coordinated framework is a positive development. In addition, many Member States have adopted thematic action plans addressing particular challenges, such as gender-based violence. Actual implementation of gender equality policies is uneven across Member States and policy areas, due to the variation in socio-economic, cultural and institutional conditions. The design and the implementation of national strategies and action plans have been influenced by past European frameworks for gender equality, which Member States see as a strong driving force for national developments.⁷⁸

Annex 6: Main policy fields addressed by Member States' gender equality strategies/action plans (September 2015)

Initially, national gender equality strategies were focused on the labour market, with the introduction of legislation and regulatory measures on the equal treatment of women and men in terms of employment. In more recent years, socio-economic changes have led to intervention being extended to other relevant fields, both in the labour market (pay gaps, working time, work-life balance) and other areas, such as violence against women, health, and economic and political decision-making³⁴. The fields are covered in the Member States' strategies and action plans as follows:
