

Call for applications 2026 for the University of Graz as entrance university International Graduate Study Programme in Cultural Sociology

Join our international Master's programme and explore an exceptional study experience across at least two universities within our international consortium. Our four European partner universities offer cutting-edge education in Cultural Sociology, providing valuable insights into how cultural practices contribute to the creation of social cleavages and are, in turn, shaped by these dynamics.

Application deadline: June 1, 2026 (23:59 CEST)

EXPAND YOUR UNDERSTANDING OF THE SOCIO-CULTURAL PROCESSES THAT SHAPE AND TRANSFORM OUR WORLD.

You will study the complex interaction of culture with social, political, and economic processes and structures in the context of a broad range of current social issues, such as migration, urban development and social movements.

We believe that Central and Southeastern Europe, with its long history of multicultural encounters, conflicts and cohesion-building activities, is the best place to study cultural practices and cultural differences.

Participating Universities:

University of Graz (Austria),
Masaryk University (Czech Republic),
University of Trento (Italy),
University of Zadar (Croatia)

The programme provides for an integrated mobility semester (30 ECTS) at one of the partner universities as a mandatory requirement for graduation.
