

Spanning Regions and Disciplines: Joint Lecture Series 2024/25 of the European Joint Master's Programme in English and American Studies

A transdisciplinary series of online lectures offered jointly by the partner universities of this Joint Master's Programme.

This year's edition of the series, which is run by the Jagiellonian University, consists of four online lectures taught between October 2024 and January 2025 and a hybrid student conference in May 2025.

Prof. Dr. Hermine Penz (Graz)

“ECONstructing Nature: Of Trees and Forests”

9 October 2024, 6pm - 8pm

Prof. Dr. Jan Rybicki (Krakow)

“Counting Literature: Stylometry,
Distant Reading and Other Things”

13 November 2024, 6pm - 8pm

Environment(s): Literary, Cultural and Linguistic Perspectives

Dr. Enrico Mariani (Venice)

“I'm glad I'm not a hog': Animality and
Socialism in Sinclair's The Jungle and Oil!”

11 December 2024, 6pm - 8pm

Prof. Dr. Christine Gerhardt (Bamberg)

“Gardening as Salvation?:
Emily Dickinson's Environments”

8 January 2025, 6pm - 8pm

It is an outstanding opportunity to interact with a group of international students and to get to know professors from the partner universities. Students can complete the course by attending all lectures and hybrid conference online, but they can also actively participate in the conference by presenting their own paper on site during the event, which will be organized by the partner university of Pécs.

Student Conference
8 May 2025
University of Pécs

Scan me to access the online lectures.

