The talk purports to provide a primer for the coping with antinomies by guarentist jurists. It will consider, in turn, seven tools that may be of use to that purpose: namely, the distinction between constitutional antinomies in a generic sense, in a proper sense and in an improper sense; the distinction between logical and ontological constitutional antinomies; the notion of a well-formed code for the identification of antinomies (identification code); the notion of a well-formed code for the resolution of antinomies (resolution code); the outline of a guarentist code for the identification of constitutionally relevant antinomies; the outline of a guarentist code for the resolution of constitutionally relevant antinomies; the outline of a guarentist code for the resolution of constitutional antinomies proper.
