

Are interpersonal utility comparisons (scientifically) possible?

Prof. Dr. Bernward Gesang (University of Mannheim)

Abstract:

In this article, the Paretian criticism of interpersonal utility comparisons will be rejected. Procedures for carrying out such comparisons will be presented. Next, the criticism that these procedures have only pragmatic, but no scientific significance should be reflected upon. The aim of the essay is a defense of the utilitarian understanding of economics.

Tuesday, 29th of October
17:00-18:30
SR 129.11 (Hilmgasse 4/1st floor)

Climate Change Graz

Field of Excellence
University of Graz

