PAUL DE GRAUWE

Prior to joining LSE, Paul De Grauwe was Professor of International Economics at the University of Leuven, Belgium. He was a member of the Belgian parliament from 1991 to 2003. He is honorary doctor of the University of Sankt Gallen (Switzerland), of the University of Turku (Finland), the University of Genoa, the University of Valencia and Maastricht University.

He obtained his PhD from the Johns Hopkins University in 1974. He was a visiting professor at various universities, and was also a visiting scholar at the IMF, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve, the Bank of Japan and the European Central Bank.

He was a member of the Group of Economic Policy Analysis. He is also director of the money, macro and international finance research network of CESifo, University of Munich. He is a research fellow at the Centre for European Policy Studies in Brussels and the Centre for Economic Policy Research, London.

His research interests are international monetary relations, monetary integration, theory and empirical analysis of the foreign-exchange markets, and open-economy macroeconomics. His published books include „The Economics of Monetary Union“, Oxford, which was translated in ten languages and is now in its tenth edition. Other books are „International Money. Post-war Trends and Theories“, Oxford, and „The exchange rate in a behavioural finance framework“, Princeton.
