

(Non)Ideal Self

The skilled baker accidentally added a dash of enchanted spice, bringing one of the gingerbreads to life.

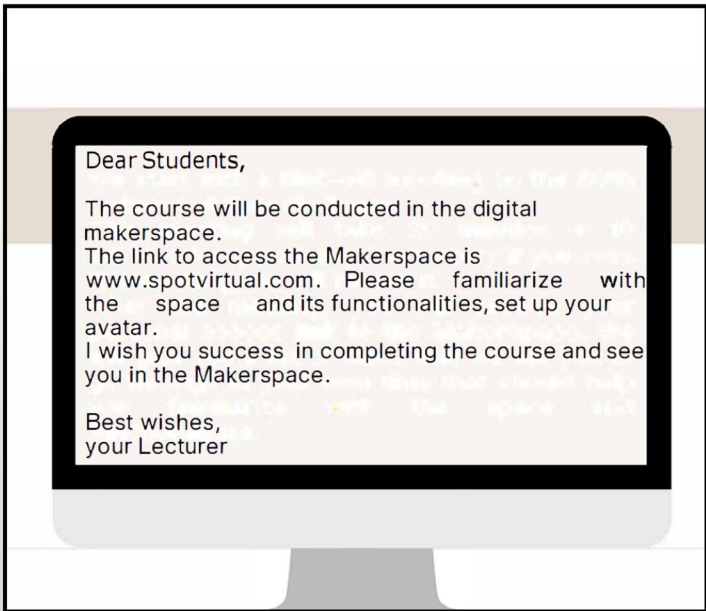

Being very ambitious, Gingerbread left school successfully and entered the university.

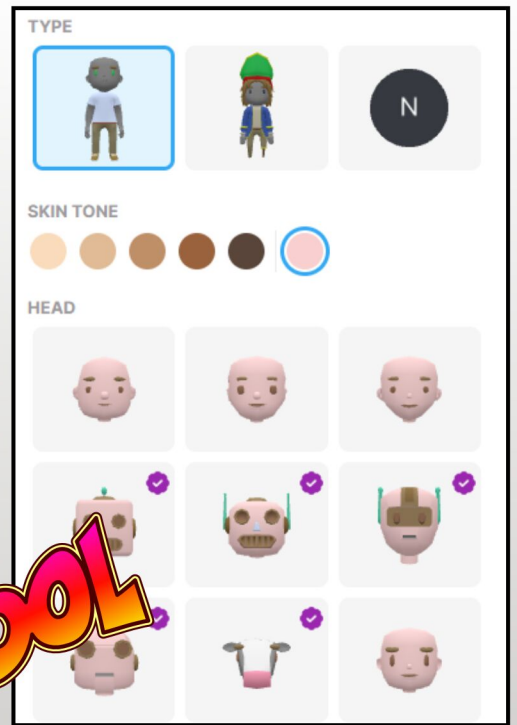

Gingerbread always felt a bit uncomfortable with the other students because Gingerbread was so unique.

One day, Giggerbread received an email from the lecturer.

Being dissatisfied with many aspects of the actual self, Gingerbread decided to experiment and tried to create an ideal self that could make the life better and add to a sense of safety.

Gingerbread set up the avatar of the actual "(non)ideal" self in the virtual space. Nobody showed any expectations or judgements.

Gingerbread's emotions were understandable for others.

Gingerbread enjoyed spending time in the Makerspace, feeling a part of this community where experiences were not overvalued.

TO BE CONTINUED...