

DISPUTATIO

History and Translation

Entangled Perspectives

Tuesday 16th May, 2017 | 17:30–19:00

Room 2.106, Department of Translation Studies

Merangasse 70, 8010 Graz

The aim of this DISPUTATIO is to explore the transdisciplinary potential of history as an object of translation research, and, vice versa, of translation as an object of historical research. Two distinguished scholars, Christopher Rundle (University of Bologna) and Luc van Doorslaer (University of Leuven), will enter into a border-crossing dialogue and will discuss some of the central interfaces of translation and history, including translation concepts in historiography and shared and dividing discourses in the two disciplines.

Luc van Doorslaer
(University of Leuven)

—versus—

Christopher Rundle
(University of Bologna)

Introduction and Moderation:
Hanna Blum (University of Graz)