

Political Science Day 2022

November 24–25, 2022

University of Graz

The ninth “Political Science Day” – the official conference of the Austrian Political Science Association (AuPSA) – will take place on November 25, 2022 at the University of Graz.

The conference opens with a public event on Thursday, November 24. Panel sessions are scheduled for Friday, November 25. While the language of the conference is English, contributions in German are also welcome.

Call for Papers

As a forum for the discussion of current political science research, the Political Science Day intends to contribute to strengthen Austria-wide networking among experienced and young political science researchers. Abstract submissions should present the paper's research question, its theoretical and methodological approach. In order to enable an intensive exchange in the panels, we ask for submissions that go beyond pure project descriptions.

Upon acceptance, submissions will be thematically structured and assigned to panels by a program committee made up of representatives from Austrian political science institutions. We ask for keywords to make the allocation of papers among the various panels easier. It is also possible to submit entire panels (4–5 papers that follow the criteria of paper submissions, including individual paper abstracts). Regarding the submission of such proposals, the program committee prefers gender-balanced panels. Please also note that researchers should not submit more than two papers (either as author or co-author).

Paper submissions should include the following information:

1. Paper title
2. Author(s)
3. Email contact
4. Abstract (max. 300 words)
5. 4 keywords

Abstracts will be submitted electronically via the conference website.

Please submit your abstract by July 15, 2022.
