

Einladung
zum Vortrag von

İREM ÖZGOREN KINLI

(Universität Izmir, Türkei)

Women, power and political discourse in Turkey

Zeit: Mittwoch, 22.05.2019 um 18:30 Uhr

Ort: SR 15.4E, RESOWI-Zentrum, Gebäudeteil G, 4.Stock

Zum Vortrag

The presentation is divided into three main parts: firstly, I will probe the question of women's instrumental roles and agency in the process of nation building in early Republican Turkey. The issue I address in this part of the presentation is whether the leaders of the Turkish Republic have considered or ignored women's demands for their rights. I would like to demonstrate how women asserted their agency and offered alternative histories to shape their own histories of the early Republican Turkey. Secondly, I will explore how the feminist discourse and writing have developed in Turkey between 1970-1990. This part of the presentation will argue that women in Turkey were emancipated but remained unliberated. Lastly, I will present secular and Islamists women's concerns about women's rights in contemporary Turkey. I will discuss whether there are grounds for solidarity between Islamist and secular women concerning women's rights in contemporary Turkey.

Zur Vortragenden

İREM ÖZGOREN KINLI studied at Marmara University (Turkey), Francophone Department of Political and Administrative Sciences, International Relations at Ege University (Turkey), and Political Sociology at Université Paris I – Panthéon Sorbonne (France). She graduated from this university in 2011 with a PhD in Political Science. She has been working as a full-time lecturer in the Department of Political Science at Izmir Kâtip Celebi University (Turkey) since March 2016.