

© Deny Jäger

Presenting the core issues of a dissertation in only 3 minutes? Is that possible? Andreas Schober of the Institute for Educational Science took part in the international 3MT competition, which was hosted by the University of Graz.

During his 2 minutes and 42 seconds presentation Schober tried to outline his research and to make it accessible to the audience. By shortening the title of the dissertation to “Austrian emergency services 144 & competences” and using a clear structure he was able to transmit the complex idea in a rather short amount of time. In his dissertation he tries to describe what prehospital professionals of different proficiency levels in Austria need in order to treat a patient competently.

The video of the presentation can be found at:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=pYqiTamXZIO>